Your communication of July, 2017 did lead me to believe that you were obtaining statements from individuals involved with the prescription scheme. Your email of today indicates that you simply are informing individuals that they are "accused" of involvement with the prescription scheme used to repeatedly violate the Federal Clean Water Act. I now understand that the EPA is not engaged in an investigation of individuals or agencies involved with the prescription scheme - and - the EPA is not investigating repeated Clean Water Act violations involving Shaw Creek and involving Wide Hollow Creek.

As I mentioned in previous emails, a large body of hard-evidence affirms that the WDFW, Yakima County, and others have created a prescription scheme that they use to repeatedly perform unlawful "fill & dredge" of jurisdictional waters (including jurisdictional wetlands) within Yakima County. During a formal period of discovery, involving the current Clean Water Act litigation (Shaw Creek; Shaw Creek wetlands; 2012), more evidence and depositions under oath will provide additional materials. Appropriate agencies such as Ecology, the Attorney General's Office, the USACE, and the EPA will likely receive more evidence as it becomes available during the next few months.

Please let me know the name of your contact person at Ecology, at the USACE, and at the Attorney General's office so that I can provide them with evidence as it becomes available.
